Lieutenant Hansen said he was the S.W.A.T. Commander during the incident. Hansen said that on March 16, 2004, he received information from the Safe Streets Bureau members, of a warrant service in West Covina. Hansen said he responded with members of the Special Enforcement Bureau after receiving a request from Lieutenant Zagursky of the Safe Streets Bureau to respond to a barricaded suspect. Hansen said he was told that Suspect Rodriguez had been firing his gun inside the apartment. Hansen said the suspect's [redacted] told them that Rodriguez was under the influence of methamphetamine, had a 9mm handgun and had made a statement to her, that he would "See her in heaven." Hansen said he ordered immediate deployment of his personnel as they arrived. Hansen said all Safe Streets and West Covina Police personnel were replaced with S.W.A.T. personnel.

IAB Note: The location where the suspect was barricaded is a [redacted] apartment building. Apartment "[redacted]" is a [redacted] apartment closest to Dennis Place. Apartment "[redacted]" (suspect's apartment) is a [redacted] apartment [redacted] in-between apartments [redacted] and [redacted] Apartment "[redacted]" is a story apartment [redacted] of the building.

Lieutenant Hansen said the area was contained and evacuations of nearby civilians were conducted. Hansen said as the evacuations were continuing he could hear the suspect firing his weapon inside apartment [redacted] Hansen said he conferred with Incident Commander Tom Angel and received permission to deploy 37 mm, "Ferret" gas canisters, into the suspect's location. Hansen said the S.W.A.T. deputies were given permission to fire gas at their discretion. Hansen explained that he hoped to contain the suspect's indiscriminate gun fire and possibly get the suspect to surrender. Hansen said while this was occurring the Crisis Negotiating Team was also attempting to get the suspect to surrender. Hansen said at one point during the incident the suspect requested 30 minutes time, before he would surrender. Hansen said the suspect's request was granted but after the 30 minutes the suspect refused to surrender and began firing rounds outside the apartment toward perimeter personnel. Hansen said that Sergeant Kubley (SWAT team leader) requested permission to use a "Gas Ax" (method for deploying hot gas) through a wall separating apartment [redacted] from the suspect's apartment. Hansen explained that because of the suspect's actions and the potential that a stray round fired by the suspect might injure Sheriff's personnel or a civilian, a decision was made to insert additional cold and hot gas into the suspect's apartment.

Lieutenant Hansen said as this was occurring he ordered the deployment of "Flash Bangs" (diversionary device) to distract the suspect. The introduction of the "Hot Gas" seemed to have some effect on the suspect because the suspect momentarily stopped firing his gun. Hansen said he could hear a loud banging sound coming from inside of the suspect's apartment. Hansen said he was concerned the suspect might be trying to gain access into the roof or into an adjacent apartment. Hansen said he learned later that the suspect had broken a hole through a wall separating the suspect's apartment and apartment [redacted] Hansen said a short time later the suspect appeared at the northeast ground floor window of apartment [redacted] (#4 side of containment). Hansen said the suspect fired numerous shots at Deputies Plent and Nathan. Plent and Nathan reported that they were taking fire and they reported they returned fire (shooting location #1).

Lieutenant Hansen said following the exchange of gunfire the suspect disappeared. Hansen said they believed the suspect might have been hit by Plent's and Nathan's rounds. A decision was made to use a robot which is equipped with a camera, to look into the northeast window of apartment [redacted] Hansen said as soon as the robot looked inside the window, the suspect began firing. Hansen said the suspect's actions convinced him that he (suspect) had been "lying in wait" to shoot and kill deputy personnel. Hansen said that soon after, the suspect fired from a second story window of apartment [redacted] toward containment #3 side (location of shooting #2). Hansen said the suspect fired at Deputies Desmarteau, Corbett and Patterson. Hansen said that Deputies Desmarteau and Corbett returned fire at the suspect. Hansen said the suspect disappeared and additional cold and hot gas was introduced into both apartments [redacted] and [redacted] Hansen explained that during his years at the Special Enforcement Bureau, he could not recall any other incident where so much "gas" (51 total canisters, 45 Ferret and 6 CS canisters of cold and hot gas) was deployed into a location, without any apparent effect. Hansen said that during the entire incident continual announcements were being made via a P.A. (Public address) system asking the suspect to surrender or to pick up the telephone and speak with C.N.T. (crisis negotiating personnel). Hansen said he requested and received permission from Incident Commander Betkey (who relieved Incident Commander Tom Angel) to deploy an explosive breach at the front door of apartment [redacted] Hansen explained that he wanted to limit the suspect's ability to move freely between apartments [redacted] and [redacted] Hansen said after the door was breached, deputy personnel entered and cleared the ground floor of apartment [redacted]

Lieutenant Hansen said deputy personnel and a K-9 unit entered and cleared the second story apartment [redacted] Hansen said while clearing the north bedroom of apartment [redacted] deputies discovered that the suspect had made a hole in the west wall of the bedroom allowing the suspect access between apartments [redacted] and [redacted] Hansen said Deputy Corbett and a K-9 unit were deployed to contain the upper floor of apartment [redacted] Hansen said because he believed the suspect might have gained entry into the garage ([redacted]) he ordered an that an armored vehicle be used to force open (break down) the garage door. Hansen explained that there was no other way to safely access and search the garage. Hansen said the garage was then cleared by a K-9 unit. Hansen said he requested and was granted permission from Incident Commander Betkey to use an explosive device to breach the front door of apartment [redacted] Hansen said once the door to apartment [redacted] was breached, another group of deputies made entry into that apartment. Hansen said while this was occurring, the suspect appeared at the hole in the wall between apartments [redacted] and [redacted] Hansen said the suspect was armed with a handgun. Hansen said Deputy Corbett fired one round at the suspect who disappeared back into apartment [redacted] (shooting location #3). Hansen said announcements were continually being made asking the suspect to surrender. Hansen said he ordered that "Clear Out" gas be deployed when he received no response from the suspect. Hansen said shortly after the deployment of the "Clear Out" a naked suspect jumped from the [redacted] rear bedroom window of apartment [redacted] armed with a handgun. Hansen said the suspect's fall caused the gun to break apart on the driveway of the location. Hansen said the suspect then ran south toward the street (#1 containment side of the location). Hansen said the suspect was then taken to the ground and bitten by a K-9 dog. Hansen said the suspect then began fighting with the dog.

Lieutenant Hansen said Sergeant [redacted] then "Tased" the suspect in order to get him to comply. Hansen said after the suspect was "Tased" he complied and was taken into custody. Hansen said the suspect was immediately treated by paramedics and transported to the hospital via ambulance. Hansen added that because the involved deputies were exhausted he allowed them to leave with their weapons prior to our arrival.

He said the command staff decided to deploy "Hot" gas into the apartment via a "Gas Ax" (method for deploying hot gas). Desmarteau said the approximately thirty minutes passed when he heard gunshots and saw the reflection of a muzzle flash on the containment 4 side (northeast side). He said he believed the suspect was firing at the deputies on containment 4. Desmarteau said he heard several controlled bursts of gunfire which he believed was coming from the deputies on containment 4.

Deputy Desmarteau said that he believed the suspect might have been hit by the deputies (Plent and Nathan) gunfire because everything went quiet for a period of time. He said a robot was moved into position to look inside the east ground floor window of apartment[redacted] Desmarteau said as soon as the robot's arm went into the window he heard a gunshot. He said he was again ordered to deliver 3 additional gas rounds into the second floor window of apartment[redacted] Desmarteau said he heard the suspect fire a round directly over his head.
